Customer Reviews

Having survived a brief but devastatingly abusive marriage eighteen months earlier, Gabriella Masini left her brother's island resort off the Florida Keys and has been living in Los Angeles where she works for the matchmaking firm, Alliance. A whiz with numbers, Gabi has been asked by the firm's owner to investigate a potential client in search of a temporary wife. Gabi rejects his application but rejection isn't something Hunter Blackwell, self-made, ruthless, billionaire businessman is willing to accept. Gabi thought she had finally put her first marriage and her louse of a husband - now deceased - behind her. But Alonzo's power seems to reach beyond the grave when Hunter uncovers information that could land Gabi in plenty of hot water. She's forced to accept Hunter's help in keeping her out of prison in exchange for a temporary marriage. The number of women trying to trap Hunter Blackwell into marriage seems to increase with each million added to his net worth. Obtaining a wife for the next eighteen months will make that part of his life easier - so he thinks - yet his real reason for needing a wife remains a secret. Hunter isn't a man used to being told no and when Gabi rejects his application he uncovers information about her past that enables him to blackmail her into marrying him herself. He's not particularly proud of himself, especially as he spends time with Gabi and begins to know her better, but desperate times call for desperate measures. At first, Gabi and Hunter seem a pairing destined for disaster but that slowly begins to change. With Hunter, Gabi gradually begins to rediscover her self-confidence and repair her battered sense of worth. She strengthens, coming into her own and beginning to trust again.

Although it's hard to pick a favorite, I truly believe that Gabi and Hunter Blackwell are my favorite Weekday Bride couple! Treasured by Thursday really couldn't be a more perfect finale for this series. To say Gabi Masini has been through a lot in the past year would be a gross understatement. However, she's trying to move on with her life and leave her past in the past. She's moved across the country and has set up house in Southern California, working for Alliance. Since Meg married her brother, Gabi has the Tarzana house to call her own. Hunter Blackwell has a problem - he needs a wife, fast. While his old high school friend Blake offers the contact information for Alliance, he makes no guarantees that he will be accepted as a client - nor will he intercede on Hunter's behalf. When Sam asked Gabi to take care of the Blakewell case, she never anticipated that Gabi would marry Hunter herself. Needless to say, everyone in Gabi's life is in shock and they have all threatened Hunter bodily harm, even death, should he hurt Gabi. While Gabi is definitely in a fragile state - has suffered enormous tragedy - she is a strong, shrewd woman who refuses to be taken advantage of. She plays by her own rules and proves time and again that while her past has made her wiser, it hasn't jaded her to the point of losing the essence of who she is. And Gabi is not only an intelligent and beautiful woman, but she has the ability to see other's pain and weakness - the ability to inspire those around her to be better. Hunter Blackwell may very well be an arrogant, spoiled brat, he's also a shrewd businessman who is always in control. He wants something - he gets it. No matter what means he has to use.
