Alfred Marroquin took me on a journey that brought me back to places in my life that I have not thought about in some time. His expressions of emotion were poignant and touched my soul. Love this book and highly recommend it. A quick but important read for anyone who has experienced loss as painful as that my be.

This book touched me deeply. Everyone has felt like this at one point. If you haven't you are either too young or haven't lived. Each sentence, each word more delicate than the next. Some with a slight sting to it like ginger fizzing on the tongue. The progression of big tears to small with each flipped page. A timeless classic for the new age wrapped in beautiful paper, written in beautiful font. Well done Alfred.

I'm pretty new to poetry. I used to read a lot of books when my office was far from home but my new office is so close it won't let me have enough time to read a few pages even! So I started looking for good short reads and this book caught my eye. And I love it I finished it in a few hours. It's short, simple, sad and beautiful. If you've been in a relationship, you can relate to it. Anybody who's been in love can relate to it. There are shorter poems which I personally like a lot such as "I wish I can give you this feeling" and such. Might sound not so special but it stings my heart because I feel like I can relate and feel empathy to what writer must have felt at that time when he was writing it. I love it. Highly recommend. Hope he writes another book soon.

This book is raw and real and is something almost everyone can relate to. It walks you through a range of emotions that you otherwise might not be able to identify on your own, but the way Alfred presents them is so clear and relatable, it's amazing. Highly recommend.

I love the book
